1.	Longhaul Fuel Surcharge

LONGHAUL FUEL SURCHARGE INCREASED

British Airways is to increase its longhaul fuel surcharge with effect from Wednesday May 2, 2007 as a result of recent trends in the price of oil.

The fuel surcharge on longhaul flights of less than nine hours will rise from GBP30 per sector (GBP60 return) to GBP33 (GBP66 return) and from GBP35 per sector to GBP38 (GBP76 return) on flights longer than nine hours.

The shorthaul fuel surcharge remains unchanged at GBP8 per sector (GBP16 return).

Robert Boyle, British Airways' commercial director, said: "The latest increase in the longhaul fuel surcharge is regrettable.

Edgar Filing: BRITISH AIRWAYS PLC - Form 6-K

"The cost of fuel has risen significantly in recent weeks. Unfortunately, we have little choice but to pass on some of this extra cost to our customers.

"Fuel continues to be our second largest cost and we expect our fuel bill for the year 2007/2008 to be more than GBP2 billion.

"The price of oil continues to be extremely volatile. Therefore, we believe the fuel surcharge continues to be the most transparent way for our customers to understand what they are paying and allows us to adjust the direct cost to our customers appropriately, whether that is increasing or reducing the fuel surcharge as we did on some of our longhaul flights in January."

British Airways will also increase its fuel surcharges by similar levels in markets outside the UK.
