PRESS RELEASE

CNH Completes Warehouse and Training Centre

Upgrades in Australia

LUGANO, Switzerland (March 9, 2011) CNH International, a subsidiary of CNH Global a global leader in the agricultural and construction equipment businesses, today officially inaugurated its new warehouse facilities and training centre in St Marys, NSW, Australia.

With a total footprint of over 16,000 m<sup>2</sup> and a cubic storage capacity of 160,000 m<sup>3</sup>, the improved facility will serve 225 Case IH and New Holland Agriculture outlets in Australia and 20 strategic distributors in New Zealand and South East Asia. Local parts operations are also supported by a secondary warehouse based in Perth, Western Australia.

The inauguration ceremony marks the completion of an important warehouse and training facilities expansion project, commenced in 2008, to support the growth of the Case IH, New Holland and FlexiCoil brands in Australia. CNH's agricultural equipment business has grown steadily, taking leadership of the market in 2009 with its brands, and further consolidating this position in 2010.

The warehouse upgrades have increased undercover storage capacity by 50% and allow the improvement of the in and out flows to increase productivity and ensure faster service to dealers and customers. The expanded facility layout, new flow operation and the introduction of RF barcode technology will enable CNH Parts & Service to further improve the accuracy, time and delivery performance required in this business.

Dealers and customers will benefit from faster receiving and picking cycle times – in some cases going as far as halving the time from order to despatch.

Today is a proud moment for all of us at CNH and especially for the project management and warehouse teams, who have completed the project on time and maintained the highest standards of service to the dealer network throughout the construction and reorganisation period, said General Manager Parts Operations Australia and New Zealand Dean Hopping.

The inauguration ceremony, attended by representatives from Federal government, the Case IH and New Holland dealer network, suppliers and the press, also unveiled the new Training Centre. The upgrades include increasing the number of training rooms to four, all equipped with the latest technology and training aids, viewing windows from classroom to workshops, and increased workshop capacity by 35%, as well as improving the hospitality facilities.

Our priority, at CNH, is to provide a level of service that best meets our dealers' and customers' needs, concluded Dean. The upgraded facilities will enable us to provide best-in-class training and increase the number of courses offered at the Training Centre to approximately 100 classes per year. We estimate that with the new facilities we will be able to cover the needs of 1,200 participants a year on average.
