Atmel/Dialog External Q&A

Dialog Acquisition Background

Q1: Who is Dialog Semiconductor?

A1: Dialog Semiconductor Plc is a fabless semiconductor company focused on mixed signal products. The company was founded in 1990 and is headquartered in the United Kingdom. In 2014, it had approximately $1.16 billion in revenue and was one of the fastest growing public semiconductor companies. The Street currently estimates over $1.4 billion in revenue for 2015. It currently has approximately 1,500 employees worldwide. The company is listed on the Frankfurt (FWB: DLG) stock exchange and is a member of the German TecDax index.

Dialog operates the following business segments: Mobile Systems, Connectivity, Power Conversion, and Automotive and Industrial. The Mobile Systems segment includes power management (PMIC) and audio chips designed for a wide variety of mobile devices. The Connectivity segment is primarily focused on BLE and wireless audio products. The Power Conversion segment (legacy iWatt) includes AC/DC converter solutions that enable smaller, fast charging power adaptors for portable devices as well as LED drivers for solid-state lighting. The Automotive and Industrial segment provides motor control and custom products.

Q2: Why is Dialog acquiring Atmel? Provide us with the strategic rationale for this transaction?

A2: This is a highly complementary acquisition and our belief is that in bringing our two organizations together we will create a stronger combined company with the requisite scale, technology, products and worldwide team to win in the dynamic semiconductor market and drive the maximum value for our stockholders. The combined company will have $2.7 billion in revenue (based on the trailing twelve months results) and will provide our mutual customers with an unparalleled portfolio of technology and innovative products addressing the attractive Mobile, IoT, Automotive and Industrial end markets.

This transaction combines Atmel's market leading microcontrollers, wireless connectivity solutions, capacitive touch, security, automotive and memory solutions and leverages Atmel's leading distribution channels and tens of thousands of customers with Dialog's winning power management, power conversion, audio and connectivity solutions. The combined company will have a strong presence in the Mobile, Automotive and Industrial end markets as well as an industry leading position in the rapidly expanding IoT marketplace.

Q3: What are the terms of this transaction?

A3: Dialog is acquiring Atmel for cash and stock. Under the terms of the agreement, Atmel shareholders will receive $4.65 in cash and 0.112 of a Dialog American Depositary Share (ADS) for each Atmel common share held at close of the transaction resulting in the economic equivalent of $10.42 per Atmel share based on Dialog 's closing stock price as of 18 September 2015. The purchase price implies a total equity value for Atmel of approximately $4.6 billion and a total enterprise value of approximately $4.4 billion after deduction of Atmel 's net cash position as of June 30, 2015

Q4: What ownership will Atmel stockholders have after the acquisition?

A4: After the close of the acquisition Atmel stockholders are expected to own approximately 38% of the combined company.

Q5: Did you use any bankers?

A5: Atmel was advised by Qatalyst Partners. Dialog was advised by Morgan Stanley.

Q6: When are you providing additional details on this transaction?

A6: Dialog and Atmel management will host two joint investor conference calls on September 21, 2015. Information is contained in today's press release and on the events page of Atmel's investor relations Website ir.atmel.com.

Q7: Does Dialog have any patents or IP that is significant in this market?

A7: Dialog has over 540 patents, which when combined with the more than 1,600 US and foreign patents held by Atmel will create a powerful IP portfolio focused on the Mobile, IoT, Auto and Industrial markets.

Q8: How many employees are there at Dialog?

A8: Dialog has approximately 1,500 employees, the majority of which are located outside the United States. In addition, over 75% of the Dialog's employees are engineers. The company is headquartered in the United Kingdom with a significant R&D presence in Germany, Silicon Valley and Asia. Atmel has approximately 5,100 employees located in various geographies.

Q9: Please tell us about the leadership/CEO of Dialog?

A9: Dr. Jalal Bagherli joined Dialog as CEO and Director in September 2005. He was previously Vice President & General Manager of the Mobile Multimedia business unit for Broadcom Corporation. Prior to that Jalal was the CEO of Alphamosaic, a venture-funded silicon start-up company in Cambridge, England, focused on video processing chips for mobile applications, which was sold to Broadcom. He has extensive experience in the semiconductor industry, including executive positions at Sony Semiconductor and Texas Instruments, managing semiconductor product businesses and working with customers in Asia, Europe and North America. Jalal has a BSc in Electronics Engineering from Essex University, and holds a PhD in Electronics from Kent University, UK.

Q10: Upon transaction close, where will Atmel's headquarters be located? Who will the leaders be?

A10: It is still very early in the process and there are still many decisions to be made. Dr. Jalal Bagherli, Dialog's Chief Executive Officer, will run the combined company after the transaction closes.

Q11: When do you expect to close on the transaction?

A11: The transaction is expected to close during the first quarter of 2016, subject to regulatory requirements and other closing conditions

Q12: Is Dialog planning to keep all the Atmel locations? How about the Colorado fab?

A12: After the transaction is closed, we plan to integrate our operations. The Atmel Colorado fab supports approximately 50% of Atmel's wafer demand at present and is an important part of the Atmel supply chain. As we just announced the transaction today, there are still many details that need to be worked out as part of the integration planning process. We will continue to communicate new information to you throughout the process leading up to close and beyond.

Q13: Will Atmel continue to pay a dividend prior to closing the transaction?

A13: Atmel may not pay dividends to its stockholders, other than the dividend declared by Atmel's board of directors on July 7, 2015 and scheduled to be paid by Atmel on September 24, 2015 in the amount of $0.04 per Atmel common share.

Q14: Are there any break-up fees?

A14: All termination rights, and related break-up fees, are fully described in the Report on Form 8-K filed by Atmel in connection with the transaction.

Q15: What if the price of Dialog stock goes down a lot before the close? Any triggers?

A15: The transaction is subject to regulatory requirements and other closing conditions. The exchange ratio is fixed.

Q16: What is the expected tax rate for the combined companies?

A16: That information is not currently available.
