May 17, 2007

Dear Shareholders:

It is our pleasure on behalf of the Board of Directors to present the Semi-Annual Report for The Japan Equity Fund, Inc. (the Fund) for the six months ended April 30, 2007.

Comment

During the period from November 2006 to April 2007, the net asset value of the Fund increased 2.17% in USD terms. Over the same period, the benchmark TOPIX index advanced 3.32% in USD terms and, as a result, the Fund underperformed the benchmark by 1.15%.

In JPY terms, the performance of the equity portion of the portfolio (excluding expenses and the cash position effect) was 4.80%, while the TOPIX index was up 5.85% in JPY terms.

Relative to the TOPIX index, the sector selection effect on the Fund's portfolio was +0.01%, while the stock selection effect was -1.07% (see Table 3).

As illustrated in Table 4, the sector selection effect on the Fund's portfolio was essentially flat, as the positive contributions made by the Fund's overweight position in machinery stocks and underweight in banks were, for the most part, offset by the negative contributions derived from the Fund's underweighting in both the food and other products industries. There was also a sizable negative stock selection effect within the electrical appliances, wholesale trade, construction and metal product sectors.

The Japan Equity Fund, Inc.

During the period, major negative contributors included Fujitsu in the electrical appliances sector and NHK Spring among metal products stocks. Fujitsu's stock price dropped, as its semiconductor and hard disk businesses have suffered significantly due to intensified industry competition. NHK Spring shares also remained weak, as a result of both changes to their product mix, and union and re-tooling issues at the company's U.S. auto parts subsidiary. Among benchmark stocks, the Fund's portfolio did not hold any shares of Nintendo (other products), Mitsubishi Estate (real estate) or Mitsui & Co. (wholesale & trade), which had a negative impact on the performance of the Fund during the period.

Market Review (November 2006 – April 2007)

In Japanese yen terms, the TOPIX index advanced 5.85% during the six-month period from November 2006 to April 2007. The Tokyo equity market rallied from the end of November until February, eclipsing a 15-year high amid optimistic global economic expectations as well as an expansion of reorganization activity fueled to some extent by excess liquidity. However, the market has undergone a correction since late February, and has remained volatile throughout the months of March and April.

Following the February correction, the global equity markets have recouped most of their losses and many markets have once again reached historical highs. The major drivers of these recent gains are not altogether different from those that led the market prior to the correction, namely a resilient global economy and resurgent corporate reorganization activity. The global economy remains robust, driven largely by Europe and Asia, which have been partially supported by the growth of emerging countries within each region. Mergers and acquisitions ( M&A ) transactions and other reorganization activities have remained active, as corporations have been eager to improve returns by repositioning themselves, while plenty of liquidity exists in the financial markets. The U.S. stock markets have rebounded in tandem with other world markets, as many large U.S. corporations have benefited from the global economic expansion. However, the outlook for the domestic U.S. economy remains in check, as U.S. consumers may be hit by such issues as subprime mortgage problems and higher energy prices going forward. Compared to its global counterparts, the recovery of the Tokyo market has thus far been rather disappointing, due in large part to concerns over the excessively conservative profit guidance released by Japanese corporations.

For the reasons we describe below, we expect the Japanese markets to gradually catch up to their overseas counterparts late this year, as corporate profit outlooks will remain strong despite the fact that the market is expected to move sideways, for the most part, during the earnings announcement season which will continue until June.

(1) The global economic outlook is less influenced by the U.S. economy. It has become increasingly apparent that we will have to deal with both sluggish economic growth (of 1.5% to 2.5%) and low single-digit profit growth in the United States during 2007. However, the economic outlook for the rest of the world, including Asia, Europe and other emerging market countries, remains more upbeat, effectively offsetting the United States weakness. While in the past it was said that, when the U.S. sneezes, other countries catch a cold, these days are clearly over in Asia and Europe.

The Japan Equity Fund, Inc.

(2) More balanced Japanese economic growth

In contrast to the United States, the Japanese economic recovery has been driven by increased corporate exports and capital expenditures, against a backdrop of robust global economic growth led by the Brazil, Russia, India and China ( BRIC ) market. Based on recent household surveys, consumption began to pick up in the first quarter of 2007, supported by an improved employment outlook, including a shift from temporary to full-time workers. As many baby boomers begin to retire over the next few years, Japanese companies will be able to absorb the costs of wage increases which will be required to either keep existing employees or attract younger employees, without increasing total labor costs. In possession of newfound time and money, retirees could subsequently increase discretionary spending on travel and hobbies, among other things; however, we believe that the majority of retirement funds will either be saved or invested in investment trusts and other vehicles in order to supplement pension income. The impact of increased domestic consumption on the Japanese economic recovery will insulate the economy, decreasing its vulnerability to external economic conditions and, therefore, we expect growth of around 2% for the year ending March 2008.

(3) End of asset deflation

For the first time in 16 years, Japanese land prices rose in 2006. Double digit gains in land prices were recorded in metropolitan areas, as the global property boom permeated Japan's larger cities via real estate investment trusts. The price of land in Japan is currently based on cash flow estimates, not on the hope of ever increasing land prices as was the case in the 1980's. Despite the precautions taken by the Bank of Japan and other monetary authorities to monitor real estate loans, we do not expect a negative impact from bad real estate loans on banks' balance sheets.

(4) No inflation and low interest rates

We expect that the Bank of Japan will raise interest rates another 25 basis points, to 0.75%, by the end of this year, and an additional 25 basis point hike, to 1.0%, by the end of March 2008. Declining unit labor costs will keep inflation low and, despite our expectations of modest wage increases for younger workers, total labor costs should either remain flat or decline due to retiring baby boomers.

(5) Undervalued yen to continue

The value of foreign currency-denominated financial assets held by Japanese individuals reached ¥40 trillion as of December 31, 2006 (accounting for 2.7% of the ¥1,500 trillion worth of total household financial assets), twice as much as the ¥20 trillion recorded at the end of September 2003. In addition to yen carry trades, the outflows of individuals' money through higher yielding investment trusts (which invest primarily in foreign securities) will keep the appreciation of the yen in check.

(6) Conservative management guidance is a major risk factor

Given the uncertain U.S. economic outlook and volatile yen exchange rates, Japanese corporate management will be conservative with their earnings forecast guidance (which will be released together with annual business results). Also, a fiscal year 2007 tax reform to revamp Japan's depreciation rules is expected to have a negative affect on corporate accounting figures, and could reduce operating profit growth by 3% to 4%, while cash flows from operations should increase, reflecting the lower tax rates. Based on management guidance, profit growth for the year ending March 2008 will likely be flat or, possibly, a low single digit number. In our view, this is a major reason why the Tokyo market will fail to break the highs achieved at the end of February going forward.

Outlook

The Tokyo equity market has a tendency to lag behind the New York and most other world markets. This was the case in the second half of last year due to the strong influence of international investors. However, we expect to see a few catch-up rallies once the earnings announcement season is completed and, as long as the Tokyo market is perceived as a cyclical play within the world economy, the improved global economic outlook stemming from reduced fears of a U.S. recession, the continued European economic recovery and the sustained economic growth of the BRIC countries will provide the fundamental catalysts for these rallies.

The Japan Equity Fund, Inc.

Regarding sector strategy, we will maintain our overweight positions in the machinery and automobile sectors at the expense of our underweights in both personal consumption and public utilities stocks. Specifically within the personal consumption sector, we have increased our exposure to domestic consumption-related stocks, such as retailers, due to the possibility of a consumption recovery in Japan. We have trimmed our holdings of those automobile stocks that generate the majority of their earnings from the U.S. market. We believe that stock selection, rather than sector rotation, will continue to provide alpha going forward, and we intend to invest in stocks that meet the following criteria:

- (i) Positive earnings growth momentum in 2007 and 2008 with our bottom-up research activity, we believe that we can identify companies whose earnings power is not fully reflected in their stock price.
- (ii) Potential candidates for M&A or other types of reorganization these stocks tend to have attractive valuations based on either assets or earnings, as their enterprise values are not maximized for a variety of reasons.

Fund Performance

During the six months ended April 30, 2007, the Fund's market price on the New York Stock Exchange ( NYSE ) ranged from a low of $7.53 per share on November 20, 2006 to a high of $9.10 on February 23, 2007. The Fund's NYSE market price closed at $8.66 per share on April 30, 2007.

The NYSE market price in relation to the Fund's net asset value per share during the six months ended April 30, 2007, ranged from a high discount of 8.06% on February 27, 2007 to a high premium of 0.46% on April 25, 2007, and ended the period at a discount of 0.69%.

The Fund has not invested in derivative securities. Although foreign currency hedging is permitted, the Fund has not engaged in any foreign currency hedging.

Notes to Financial Statements

Organization and Significant Accounting Policies

The Japan Equity Fund, Inc. (the Fund) was incorporated in Maryland on July 12, 1990 under its former name The Japan Emerging Equity Fund, Inc. and commenced operations on July 24, 1992. It is registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission as a closed-end, diversified management investment company.

The following significant accounting policies are in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles in the United States of America for investment companies. Such policies are consistently followed by the Fund in the preparation of its financial statements. The preparation of financial statements in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. Actual reporting results could differ from those estimates.

Valuation of Investments Securities which are listed on the Tokyo Stock Exchange or listed on the over-the-counter market in Japan or listed on other exchanges in Japan and for which market quotations are readily available are valued at the last reported sales price available to the Fund at the close of business on the day the securities are being valued or, lacking any such sales, at the last available bid price. In instances where quotations are not readily available or where the price as determined by the above procedures is deemed not to represent fair market value, fair value will be determined in such manner as the Board of Directors (the Board) may prescribe. Short-term investments having a maturity of 60 days or less are valued at amortized cost, except where the Board determines that such valuation does not represent the fair value of the investment. All other securities and assets are valued at fair value as determined in good faith by, or under the direction of, the Board.

Foreign Currency Translation The books and records of the Fund are maintained in U.S. dollars as follows: (1) the foreign currency market value of investment securities and other assets and liabilities stated in Japanese yen are translated at the exchange rates prevailing at the end of the period; and (2) purchases, sales, income and expenses are translated at the rate of exchange prevailing on the respective dates of such transactions. The resulting exchange gains and losses are included in the Statement of Operations. The Fund does not isolate the effect of fluctuations in foreign exchange rates from the effect of fluctuations in the market price of securities.

Tax Status The Fund intends to continue to distribute substantially all of its taxable income and to comply with the minimum distribution and other requirements of the Internal Revenue Code applicable to regulated investment companies. Accordingly, no provision for federal income taxes is required.

The Fund is not subject to any Japanese income, capital gains or other taxes except for withholding taxes on certain income, generally imposed at rates of 7% on interest and dividends, paid to the Fund by Japanese corporations.

Investment Transactions and Investment Income Investment transactions are recorded on the trade date (the date upon which the order to buy or sell is executed). Realized and unrealized gains and losses from security and foreign currency transactions are calculated on the identified cost basis. Dividend income and corporate actions are recorded generally on the ex-date, except for certain dividends and corporate actions from Japanese securities which may be recorded after the ex-date, as soon as the Fund acquires information regarding such dividends or corporate actions. Interest income is recorded on an accrual basis.

Dividends and Distributions to Shareholders The Fund records dividends and distributions payable to its shareholders on the ex-dividend date. The amount of dividends and distributions from net investment income and net realized capital gains are determined in accordance with federal income tax regulations, which may differ from generally accepted accounting principles. These book basis/tax basis differences are either considered temporary or permanent in nature. To the extent these differences are permanent in nature, such amounts are reclassified within the capital accounts based on their federal tax basis treatment; temporary differences do not require reclassifications.

The Japan Equity Fund, Inc.

Dividends and distributions which exceed net investment income and net realized capital gains for tax purposes are reported as distributions of paid-in-capital.

New Accounting Pronouncement In July 2006, Financial Accounting Standards Board Interpretation No. 48, Accounting for Uncertainty in Income Taxes – an interpretation of FASB Statement 109 (FIN 48) was issued and is effective for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 2006. FIN 48 sets forth a threshold for financial statement recognition, measurement and disclosure of a tax position taken or expected to be taken on a tax return. Management is currently evaluating the impact, if any, the adoption of FIN 48 will have on the Fund's net assets and results of operations.

Investment Manager and Investment Adviser

The Fund has an Investment Management Agreement with Daiwa SB Investments (U.S.A.) Ltd. (the Manager). Daiwa SB Investments Ltd. ( DSBI or the Adviser ), an affiliate of the Manager, acts as the Fund's investment adviser pursuant to an Investment Advisory Agreement between the Manager and DSBI. For such investment services, the Fund is obligated to pay the Manager a monthly fee at an annual rate of 0.60% of the first $20 million, 0.40% of the next $30 million and 0.20% of the excess over $50 million of the Fund's average weekly net assets, of which fee 60% is paid by the Manager to DSBI. In addition, the Fund has agreed to reimburse the Manager and the Adviser for all out-of-pocket expenses related to the Fund. For the six months ended April 30, 2007, no out-of-pocket expenses were paid to the Manager or Adviser.

At April 30, 2007, the Fund owed $32,511 to the Manager.

Administrator and Custodian and Other Related Parties

In addition, as permitted by the Administration Agreement, the Fund reimburses the Administrator for its out-of-pocket expenses related to the Fund. For the six months ended April 30, 2007, expenses of $11,761 were paid or accrued to the Administrator, representing reimbursement to the Administrator of costs relating to the attendance by its employees at meetings of the Fund's Board.

The Board of Directors of the Fund has also approved the payment of the administrative compliance expense for the Fund in the amount of $46,000 per annum to DSTC, for services provided by DSTC staff in implementing the Fund's compliance management system and the Fund's compliance review program. This amount is included in the administration fee in the Fund's Statement of Operations.

DSTC also acts as custodian for the Fund's assets and has appointed Sumitomo Mitsui Banking Corporation (the Sub-Custodian ), an affiliate of the Manager, to act as the sub-custodian for all of the cash and securities of the Fund held in Japan. As compensation for its services as custodian, DSTC receives a monthly fee and reimbursement of out-of-pocket expenses. Such expenses include fees and out-of-pocket expenses of the Sub-Custodian. During the six months ended April 30, 2007, DSTC and the Sub-Custodian earned $32,682 and $47,832, respectively, as compensation for custodial service to the Fund.

At April 30, 2007, the Fund owed $17,078, $3,833 and $5,394 to DSTC for administration, compliance and custodian fees, respectively, excluding fees and expenses of $3,989 payable to the Sub-Custodian.
