Konnect Kick-off Reaps Good Vibes and Planning Progress

London was the gathering place for the first official “kick off” meeting of the “CPS” – Industrial Cranes & Components, Port Solutions, and Services business integration planning workstreams.

Building on the initial meeting of the Executive Committee (EC) and the Integration Management Office (IMO) in November, a broader planning group met from December 16-18 to begin the more detailed process of establishing workstream guidelines and priorities and setting up calendars and logistics for the many expected workstream follow-up meetings.

A spirit of mutual enthusiasm and optimism permeated the meeting sessions, attended by close to 70 representatives from both companies and our consulting partner, Boston Consulting Group (BCG). Participants got acquainted and discussed their mutual areas of specialty, while adhering to necessary legal restrictions, which were fully outlined at the meeting. This is critical, as Konecranes and Terex remain separate and competing organizations until the merger is final.

IMO leads Scott Hensel (Terex) and Mikko Uhari (Konecranes) set the stage – welcoming the participants, defining terms, providing planning process guidelines, answering questions and offering ongoing support. Representatives from BCG were also on hand to explain the framework that will be used throughout the planning process, and to help facilitate smaller group meetings. Integration planning team members from the Communications and Human Resources organizations of both companies rounded out the attendees.

Mikko Uhari and Scott Hensel share a moment.

Workstreams and Sponsors

In addition to the CPS workstream leads, designated “sponsors” were introduced at the meeting -- business owners who offer the workstreams advice and provide direction. These individuals include the following members:

	CPS Workstream Leads	CPS Sponsors
Industrial Cranes & Components	Andrew Clarke (Terex) Marko Tulokas (Konecranes)	Susanna Schneeberger (Terex) Ryan Flynn (Konecranes)
Port Solutions	Torsten Fischer (Terex) Mika Mahlberg (Konecranes)	Klaus Hoffmann (Terex) Ryan Flynn (Konecranes)
Service	Jörg Heber (Terex) Marko Äkräs (Konecranes)	Carolin Paulus (Terex) Fabio Fiorino (Konecranes)

EC Endorsement

Executive Committee members John

Garrison, Panu Routila (Konecranes)

and Steve Filipov also offered their perspectives to the attendees. “It is up to us to make this merger a success,” John said. “Everyone on this team now has the chance to provide input toward creating Flynn and Susanna Schneeberger.

a successful new business.” Steve added

“I can already see after one day of working together that there is a great team spirit here.” And Panu said, “This is a tremendous opportunity for our two great companies to become one.”

What’s Next

- Functional Workstreams to Meet: Much as the CPS workstreams have done, the cross-company “functional workstreams” – those areas on the right-hand side of the attached chart– will gather in London January 12-13 to begin the process of building out their visions for the future of their respective functions in the combined organization and determine the work that must be done to plan for the integration.

Culture Survey: In mid- to late-January, all leaders and managers of people from both Terex and Konecranes will be asked to complete a detailed online “Culture Survey.” While the questions will be the same for both groups, the answers will reflect the opinions and observations of each company, with respect to what they believe are the cultural norms of their organization today – and what they would like them to be in the new combined company. The results from the survey will be used as input for determining the target culture of the new organization and determining what actions need to be taken to enable that culture.

Look for continuing updates on the merger planning process leading up to the anticipated close of the transaction in mid-2016.

For a list of frequently asked questions and their answers regarding the pending merger, be sure to consult “Merger FAQs” on the home page of the intranet. You can also submit additional questions to the merger questions submission site.
