VODAFONE AND BAE SYSTEMS FORM STRATEGIC SECURITY AND MOBILE PARTNERSHIP

BAE Systems plc, one of the world's largest defence, aerospace and security companies, and Vodafone Group Plc, one of the world's largest mobile communications companies, today announced the formation of a strategic five-year partnership to provide businesses with a range of advanced communications security products and services, initially focused on smartphones and tablets. Additionally, BAE Systems today announced that it intends to select Vodafone as its preferred supplier of mobile communications worldwide, excluding the US.

The formation of the partnership is part of BAE Systems' continued commitment to grow its cyber and security arm, BAE Systems Detica, in areas such as the communications technology market. For Vodafone, the partnership extends the company's commitment to provide its global enterprise customers with the most advanced and robust security products and services available.

The first commercial element of the strategic partnership between Vodafone and BAE Systems will be a new cloud-based mobile security solution, Vodafone Mobile Threat Manager, to be brought to market in Spring 2013 and initially available to Vodafone's largest 1,500 global enterprise customers. Vodafone Mobile Threat Manager works across all networks, scanning traffic to and from a company's mobile devices in order to safeguard against malicious attacks and block inappropriate content, without impacting on device performance.

Under the terms of the partnership, BAE Systems will also confirm its intention to select Vodafone as its preferred global supplier of mobile communications, excluding the US.

Once appointed, Vodafone will provide services to BAE Systems' 35,000 UK employees from July 2013, with a view to expanding these services across its global workforce over the term of the contract. Vodafone is additionally discussing the supply of Unified Communications to BAE Systems in the UK. The partnership also provides a framework for both companies to explore a broader range of joint security products for other business areas including interconnected devices using machine to machine (M2M) technology.

Vittorio Colao, CEO of Vodafone Group, said: "Mobile is transforming enterprise; businesses big and small now rely on mobile services to an extent unimaginable five years ago. As a new generation of mobile-centric security risks begins to emerge, our customers are looking for our help to protect their businesses. Our partnership with BAE Systems will strengthen further our commitment to meet our customers increasingly complex cyber security needs. We also look forward to working with BAE Systems as the company's communications partner.

Ian King, CEO of BAE Systems, said: This partnership is unique, not only in bringing together a defence and security player with a major communications provider, but also in its ability to help global enterprises realise their ambitions around leveraging the future of communications technologies in a secure manner. These technologies are subject to the vulnerabilities of cyber space and we can provide the mobile marketplace with protection against today's threats and the advanced threats of the future.

VODAFONE UK SECURES SPECTRUM

Vodafone UK confirms, following the announcement by UK communications regulator Ofcom, that in the principal round of the spectrum auction it has acquired spectrum of 2 x 10MHz in the 800MHz band and 2 x 20MHz in the 2.6GHz band plus an additional 25 MHz of unpaired spectrum in the 2.6 GHz band. The spectrum licences are all indefinite in length and have an initial term of 20 years. The total amount payable is £790m.

The spectrum award will support Vodafone UK's plans to develop the next generation of mobile internet services, known as 4G, using Long Term Evolution (LTE) technology.

Vodafone UK chief executive Guy Laurence said: We've secured the low frequency mobile phone spectrum that will support the launch of our ultra-fast 4G service later this year. It will enable us to deliver services where people really want it, especially indoors. This is great news for our customers. The next generation of mobile internet services will bring real benefits to both consumers and businesses.

THYSSENKRUPP DOUBLES ITS VODAFONE CONTRACT VOLUME

- 60,000 voice and data connections across 30 countries on 3 continents
- 50,000 M2M connections to aid remote management of ThyssenKrupp industrial products

Vodafone today announced that it has been selected by ThyssenKrupp to provide mobile communications services in Germany and 29 other countries across Europe, Latin America and the Asia-Pacific region.

As a global mobile services provider, Vodafone will provide the industrial corporation with 60,000 mobile voice and data connections and services including mobile device management. Vodafone will also provide ThyssenKrupp with 50,000 machine-to-machine (M2M) cards which will aid the remote control and maintenance of industrial products including tens of thousands of ThyssenKrupp elevators and their emergency intercom systems. The new contract represents a doubling in volume of Vodafone's previous contract with ThyssenKrupp.

We decided to partner with Vodafone because it offers us excellent value for money and is able to meet our individual needs. On top, they offer a worldwide service management from one source," said Klaus Mühleck, CIO at ThyssenKrupp AG, explaining why the corporation opted to expand its relationship with Vodafone.

We're delighted that ThyssenKrupp has decided to expand its mobile communication services contract with Vodafone and that we'll be working together even more closely in the future, particularly in the fast-growing machine-to-machine sector. It's testament that our product and service portfolio, business model and global network are optimally geared to international corporations requirements," explained Jan Geldmacher, CEO Vodafone Global Enterprise.

With 9.7 million M2M connections and over 250 M2M specialists around the world, Vodafone is a leading provider in this fast-growing market and was recognised in February 2013 as an M2M Industry Icon by Analysys Mason in its independent M2M scorecard report.

Under the slogan "Connected Power", Vodafone will be presenting a comprehensive range of M2M solutions for the energy, health, mobility, transport and logistics sectors at this year's CeBIT trade show in Hanover from March 5th to 9th.

VODAFONE WINS GSMA AWARD FOR BEST MOBILE PRODUCT OR SERVICE FOR AUTOMOTIVE

Vodafone, in conjunction with BMW i, MINI and Sixt, has been announced the winner of the Best Mobile Product or Service for Automotive category at the Global Mobile Awards 2013 at Mobile World Congress. DriveNow, the world's first all premium car sharing service where vehicles communicate their location via an embedded telematics unit, has been recognised for its use of mobile connectivity in the rapidly converging mobile and automotive space.

Erik Brenneis, Director of M2M, Vodafone, said, "We are honoured to have been given this award and really pleased that the GSMA is as excited about this service as we are. DriveNow already has over 88,000 users and a fleet of 1,500 cars across Germany and the US. The automotive industry can benefit hugely from this kind of mobile technology. By connecting cars to the internet, manufacturers, dealers, insurers and service providers can transform the products and services they offer. This will help to drive down operating costs, comply with new regulation, improve the user experience and generate revenue streams in new, innovative ways."

DriveNow is based on mobile technology enabling cars to be rented from and dropped off anywhere within the area of business. Vehicles can be instantly accessed by registered members or booked in advance using a smartphone application.

To use the service, the consumer simply signs up online and receives a DriveNow ID (RFID). He or she can then either pick up a car on the street or reserve via a smartphone app, internet or call centre. A simple app communicates with DriveNow's backend IT system via BMW's telematic platform ConnectedDrive to authenticate the user and confirm a booking. The system will tell the user the location of the nearest car, which is done via an embedded telematics unit with a Vodafone M2M SIM. The consumer can open the door with his DriveNow ID, enter a 4 digit pin and then start the motor with the start button. No physical car key is involved.

SHARE PURCHASES

Further to its announcement on 13 November 2012 regarding the commencement of a £1.5 billion share buyback programme, and its announcement on 10 December 2012 regarding the irrevocable instructions issued to Barclays to manage part of the share buyback programme (the Initial Instruction), Vodafone Group Plc (Vodafone) announces that it has entered into a new agreement with Barclays Bank PLC and Barclays Capital Securities Limited (together Barclays) under which it has issued an irrevocable instruction starting from 12th February 2013 to Barclays for Barclays to manage part of the share buyback programme.

Barclays will carry out the instruction through the acquisition by Barclays Bank PLC or Barclays Capital Securities Limited of ordinary shares of US$0.11 3/7 each in Vodafone (Shares) for subsequent purchase by Vodafone. The instruction to Barclays will run for the period from 12 February 2013 and end no later than 10 July 2013 (the Period). The total amount of the Initial Instruction and this new instruction to Barclays will not be greater than £1.5 billion, as is determined in accordance with the agreement between Vodafone and Barclays.

The purchase of Shares in the Period by Vodafone following the agreement with Barclays and the £1.5 billion share buyback programme will be executed at all times only in accordance with Vodafone's authority to make market purchases of Shares.

Barclays may undertake transactions in Shares (which may include sales and hedging activities, in addition to purchases which may take place on any available trading venue or on an over the counter basis) during the Period in order to manage its market exposure under the programme. Disclosure of such transactions will not be made by Barclays as a result of or as part of the programme, but Barclays will continue to make any disclosures it is otherwise legally required to make. Disclosure of the purchase of Shares by Vodafone will only be made via RNS by 7am on the business day following such purchases.
