Further expansion of SOLATENOLTM fungicide in Europe

New registration in Germany received

Basis for ELATUSTM Era and ELATUSTM Plus fungicides

Delivers outstanding control of major cereals diseases

First sales in Germany in 2017 season

Syngenta announced today that the registration of its SDHI fungicide SOLATENOLTM has been further extended in Europe following approval by the German authorities. This most recent registration will allow Syngenta to introduce the products ELATUSTM Era and ELATUSTM Plus to the cereals market in Germany. ELATUSTM Plus is a solo formulation of the active ingredient SOLATENOLTM sold in co-packs with a range of other products. ELATUSTM Era is a combination of the two active ingredients SOLATENOLTM and prothioconazole.

The launch of SOLATENOLTM in Germany for the 2017 season gives growers in another major cereals market access to this leading new technology. SOLATENOLTM is already registered in France, Croatia, UK, Ireland, Finland, Latvia, Estonia and Austria.

SOLATENOLTM is a carboxamide fungicide offering an unrivaled performance against Septoria and rusts - two important diseases which can significantly impact cereals production. In trials, it has proven to be extremely consistent in providing excellent disease control on all important cereals varieties in a wide range of situations over several years. The product offers outstanding levels of leaf protection resulting in higher yield and return on investment for the farmer.

SOLATENOLTM is also available for use on soybean in Latin America and on a wide range of crops in the USA and Canada.
